2024 Annual General Meeting Chairman's Address

Delivered by Mr. Russell Higgins AO at the ninth Annual General Meeting of Argo Global Listed Infrastructure Limited (Argo Infrastructure or Company) at the Adelaide Convention Centre on Monday 21 October 2024 at 12.30pm.

Financial results

During the 2024 financial year, global infrastructure stocks generated a positive return, although they significantly lagged broader global equity markets as investors favoured growth-style stocks. The higher-for-longer interest rate environment across many of the world's major economies also weighed on the asset class, particularly Electric Utilities, which comprise nearly half of the benchmark index.

Against this challenging backdrop, Argo Infrastructure delivered a profit of $12.8 million, but more importantly, our global portfolio of listed infrastructure companies generated income of $14.9 million, up +3.8% from the previous year. In an environment of persistently high inflation, we believe the increased income we received from our investment portfolio demonstrates the benefit of inflation-linked pricing mechanisms, which allow many infrastructure businesses to increase their user fees in line with inflation.

Record high fully franked annual dividend

In August, the Board was pleased to declare a record-high, fully franked final dividend of 5.0 cents per share. Together with the interim dividend of 4.0 cents per share, annual fully franked dividends increased to 9.0 cents per share — another record high for the Company.

Since Argo Infrastructure's inception, dividends paid to our shareholders now total 57.75 cents per share. Importantly, our most recent dividend marks the Company's thirteenth consecutive fully franked dividend.

Our established track record of delivering franked dividends underscores a key benefit of Argo Infrastructure's listed investment company (LIC) structure. When the Company pays tax on profits and realised gains in Australia, we generate imputation credits for our shareholders. Investing in overseas assets directly or via a trust structure does not provide this advantage.

Investment performance

Following a challenging period, the new financial year has seen something of a reversal in fortunes for global infrastructure stocks. In the first three months of financial year 2025, the benchmark index gained +9.4% amid growing expectations that the world's largest economy, the United States, would enter a new monetary easing cycle. As we know, in mid-September, the US Federal Reserve cut the official cash rate by a larger-than-expected 50 basis points.

Argo Infrastructure has also performed well since the start of the new financial year with the portfolio increasing +10.9% in the September quarter. Over the same period, our share price rose +18.8%, narrowing our share price discount to net tangible assets (NTA) significantly.

For the 12 months to 30 September, Argo Infrastructure's portfolio has gained +24.0%, outperforming the benchmark index by 4.2%. In fact, our portfolio has outperformed the benchmark index over all time periods to 30 September 2024.

Share price relative to NTA

In our view, Argo Infrastructure's current share price discount to NTA is partly a function of the recent underperformance of infrastructure stocks relative to broader equities following sharp increases in interest rates, which remain high. However, as central banks worldwide begin or continue cutting official interest rates, it is reasonable to expect that returns from global infrastructure stocks will revert to long-term averages.

At the same time, listed investment companies (LICs) across the ASX are currently trading at larger-than-average share price discounts to NTA. One of the main factors driving this trend is the increased relative appeal of cash investments due to higher interest rates now available on term deposits and other cash investments.

We believe that Argo Infrastructure's current share price discount to NTA is largely cyclical due to these two factors. Nevertheless, we remain focused on ensuring the Company's share price better reflects the value of its underlying assets by continuing to implement a range of initiatives. These include buying the shares required for allocation to participants in the Dividend Reinvestment Plan and Dividend Substitution Share Plan 'on-market' rather than issuing new stock. Additionally, Argo Infrastructure has an on-market buy-back facility in place to be used when deemed appropriate.

Independent research

Pleasingly, two external research houses have again recognised Argo Infrastructure's track record. Following an extensive research and review process, independent investment ratings firm Lonsec recently published its 2024 report on Argo Infrastructure and reaffirmed its 'recommended' rating for the fourth year in a row.

Independent Investment Research (IIR) has also maintained its 'recommended' rating for the Company. Both reports can be read in full on our website in the 'News and Insights' section.

Directorate

As part of the Board's succession plan, Non-executive Director Ms. Joycelyn Morton retired from Argo Infrastructure's Board on 30 June 2024 after more than nine years of service. Joycelyn was one of our inaugural directors and played a key role in Argo Infrastructure's initial public offering and successful Australian Securities Exchange (ASX) listing in 2015. Her strong financial experience and team-first approach were of great value to the Company.

On behalf of the Board, I would like to take this opportunity to formally thank Joycelyn for her tireless work and contributions to Argo Infrastructure.

Ms. Sarah Brennan was appointed as an independent, Non-executive Director with effect from 1 July 2024 and I am pleased to introduce her to shareholders today. She is an experienced executive and non-executive director with more than 30 years of experience in financial services, including financial planning, superannuation, and banking. Sarah is standing for election by shareholders today and you will hear from her later in the meeting.

Chief Financial Officer

Earlier this year, we announced that our Chief Financial Officer (CFO), Andrew Hill, would be retiring. At the end of August, we farewelled Andrew.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank him for his dedicated service to Argo Infrastructure since its inception. In that time, Andrew's diligence and expertise greatly benefited the Company and our shareholders. On behalf of Argo Infrastructure, I wish Andrew all the very best in his retirement.

Stephen Mortimer was subsequently appointed CFO to both Argo Infrastructure and Argo Investments, having been promoted from the position of Finance Officer. Stephen joined Argo in 2012 and over the last nine years has worked closely with the CFO on all aspects of Argo Infrastructure's finances and financial reporting. He is a Certified Practising Accountant and a Graduate of the Institute of Company Directors.

I am pleased to formally introduce Stephen to our shareholders today.

Outlook

As the world's major central banks transition to monetary policy easing, global infrastructure stocks can expect significant tailwinds. The asset class is also poised to benefit from a number of other themes shaping the global economy, such as the anticipated surge in low emissions energy demand, which will be a boon for electric and gas assets.

Shortly, Ben Morton, our Portfolio Manager, Cohen & Steers, will discuss these and other trends creating opportunities for listed infrastructure companies in a pre-recorded video from his office in New York.

As we approach the tenth anniversary of Argo Infrastructure's listing on the ASX, we remain focused on delivering total returns for our shareholders, consisting of capital growth and dividend income from our global portfolio of listed infrastructure companies.

While market participants' sentiment towards the asset class has waxed and waned over time, we are pleased that our portfolio has delivered an average return of +8.7% per annum since inception, with less volatility than broader equity markets. Argo Infrastructure remains in a solid financial position with approximately $450 million of assets and no debt.

Thank you

I would like to conclude by thanking our Managing Director, Jason Beddow, and his team for their continued excellent performance and hard work in running the Company. I would also like to thank Ben Morton and the team at Cohen & Steers who have done a sterling job as portfolio managers.

I also thank my fellow Board members for their insightful and valuable contributions to the Company over the last year.

Most importantly, I thank our loyal shareholders and, to our new shareholders, welcome to Argo Infrastructure.
